Teach the Next Generation

There is little that any troop support group can hope to achieve more important than education. Some of our groups, such as the Warriors' Watch Riders, use motorcycles because they are highly visible. Attracting attention is a vital means of achieving our vision. When average, working Americans see other Americans going to such lengths to praise and respect our nation's warriors, it makes them understand that this is, indeed, something that they themselves can and should do. In that way we educate the adults of our time. Even more, we go into the schools. Regardless of what the specific mission of the organization, sending care packages to troops, raising funds for military family efforts, or doing Welcome Home Celebrations for troops – we take it to the schools. We set up opportunities to give demonstrations to middle schools. We ride motorcycles into High Schools. We present POW/MIA flags to local schools and use the opportunity to teach the students the value that we place on the present service of our troops and the past service of our veterans.

The AWWC understands that Education is the only thing that will prevent our country from repeating the shameful period of the 60's and 70's

The Mission and Vision of the

AWWC

The American Warriors' Watch Coalition is an all volunteer effort designed to help American Support Groups realize their full potential. Toward that end, the AWWC will:

*Unite Warrior Support Groups across the country

*Facilitate communication between Warrior Support Groups

*Maximize mutual support while minimizing duplication of efforts among Warrior Support Groups

*Raise awareness of the need for Warrior and Family Support

*Educate the Young so that future generations understand the role that the American Warrior and Families play in the Preservation of Our Freedom
